

Templer Foundation provides services that can change a child's developmental trajectory and improve outcomes for children living with developmental disabilities, families, and communities around the world. Its global initiative, Erin's Light Early Intervention Program, leverages the application of cutting-edge neuro-literacy, well-established educational modalities, and local community resources. The combination of these methods empowers parents, guardians, and caregivers to enhance their quality of life and alleviate the stigmatization associated with their children, many of whom are medically fragile.
